

MAINSTREAM, VIOLENT PORN IS EVERYWHERE...

...EVERYWHERE KIDS ARE.

CultureReframed

- Globally, at least

1.03 billion

young people have been exposed to pornography.

- In the U.S. alone, roughly

44.4 million

children and youth, aged 5-18, have been exposed to pornography.

Culture Reframed is working to stop the emotional, behavioral, and sexual harms of pornography on children and youth.

We achieve our mission in five key ways:

Raise awareness and shift cultural narratives about the impact of porn on kids

Since our founding, we have educated and influenced more than 5 million people through media interviews and appearances, conferences, social media, keynote presentations, visitors to our website, podcasts, Dr. Dines' book Pornland: How Porn Has Hijacked Our Sexuality, and more.

Build resilience and resistance in kids to hypersexualized media and porn culture

Through our online courses, partnerships, presentations, and trainings, we have reached more than 100,000 parents, professionals, and others who are now equipped to help build kids' resilience and resistance to hypersexualized media and porn culture.

Advance the academic research on the harms of pornography

- Our one-of-a-kind Academic Library is a regularly updated, searchable database of more than 500 articles. It is the world's largest compilation of contemporary, scholarly, and multidisciplinary work on the harms of pornography.
- We have commissioned 13 White Papers, written by renowned academics.
- We have funded the first empirical study, led by a team of four top-notch academics from major universities, that investigates the connection between pornography and both child sexual abuse and child-on-child sexual abuse—alarming trends that are rapidly increasing.

Foster institutional change to improve child protection and safeguarding

As a result of our training, expertise, consultation, and technical assistance, we have played a key role in changing systems and child protection policies in nearly 30 major institutions and organizations across government, multilateral bodies, and civil society.

Advocate for policy change to better protect kids from the harms of pornography

We have contributed our expertise to collaborative policy advocacy efforts in ten countries, including the U.S., resulting in increased political will for new and improved policies to protect young people from the harms of pornography.
